Sonnet 18 by William Shakespeare

Shall I compare thee to a summer's day? Thou art more lovely and more temperate: Rough winds do shake the darling buds of May, And summer's lease hath all too short a date: Sometime too hot the eye of heaven shines, And often is his gold complexion dimm'd; And every fair from fair sometime declines, By chance or nature's changing course untrimm'd; But thy eternal summer shall not fade Nor lose possession of that fair thou owest; Nor shall Death brag thou wander'st in his shade, When in eternal lines to time thou growest: So long as men can breathe or eyes can see, So long lives this and this gives life to thee.

- William Shakespeare

Excerpt from "The Love Song of J. Alfred Prufrock" by T.S. Eliot

Let us go then, you and I, When the evening is spread out against the sky
Like a patient etherized upon a table;

- T.S. Eliot

Accompanying these exquisite verses are a series of breathtaking illustrations that capture the essence of each poem. From ethereal landscapes to intimate portraits, these images add a visual dimension to the reading experience, immersing the reader in the emotions and themes explored within the poetry. Together, the words and images create a multi-sensory journey that celebrates the beauty and complexity of human love.
