Chapter 1: The Golden Age of Tag Teams

The Golden Age of Tag Teams was a period in the 1980s and early 1990s when tag team wrestling was at its peak. During this time, teams like The Road Warriors, The British Bulldogs, and The Hart Foundation dominated the WWE and other wrestling promotions.

One of the most iconic tag teams of this era was Hulk Hogan and Macho Man Randy Savage. The two men were bitter rivals for years, but they eventually put their differences aside to form one of the most successful tag teams in history. Hogan and Savage won the WWF Tag Team Championship twice and were inducted into the WWE Hall of Fame in 2015.

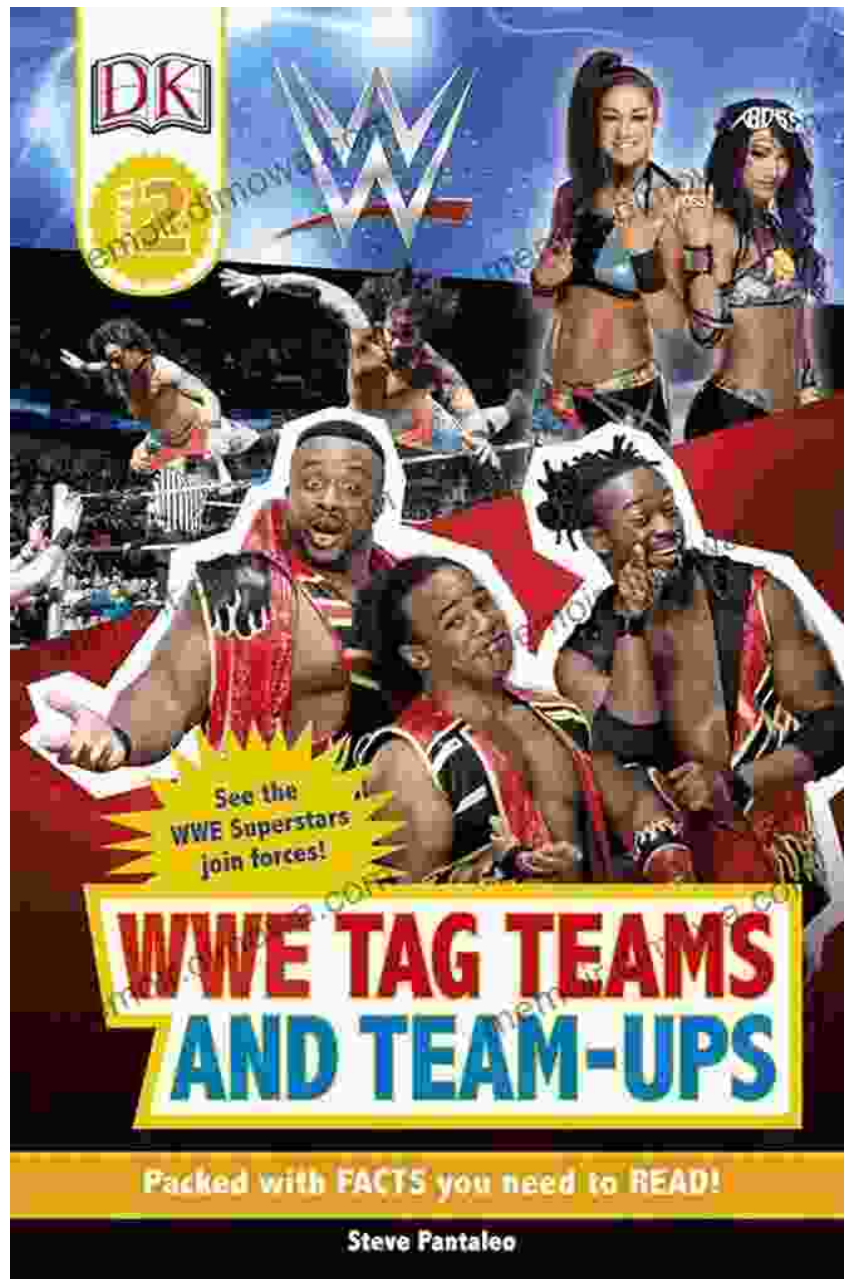

Another popular tag team of this era was The British Bulldogs. The team consisted of Davey Boy Smith and The Dynamite Kid. Smith was a powerful brawler, while The Dynamite Kid was a high-flying technician. The British Bulldogs were one of the most exciting teams to watch in the WWE, and they won the WWF Tag Team Championship once.

The Hart Foundation was another successful tag team of the Golden Age of Tag Teams. The team consisted of Bret Hart, Jim Neidhart, and Owen Hart. Bret Hart was one of the best technical wrestlers in the world, while Jim Neidhart was a powerful brawler. Owen Hart was a high-flying technician. The Hart Foundation won the WWF Tag Team Championship twice.

Chapter 2: The Attitude Era

The Attitude Era was a period in the late 1990s and early 2000s when the WWE became more edgy and adult-oriented. During this time, tag team wrestling took a backseat to singles competition. However, there were still some great tag teams that emerged during this era.

One of the most popular tag teams of the Attitude Era was D-Generation X. The team consisted of Shawn Michaels, Triple H, Chyna, and Rick Rude. D-Generation X was known for their rebellious attitude and their over-the-top antics. The team won the WWF Tag Team Championship four times.

Another popular tag team of the Attitude Era was The New Age Outlaws. The team consisted of Road Dogg Jesse James and Billy Gunn. The New Age Outlaws were known for their laid-back attitude and their catchphrase, "Oh, you didn't know? Your ass better call somebody!" The team won the WWF Tag Team Championship five times.

Chapter 3: The Ruthless Aggression Era

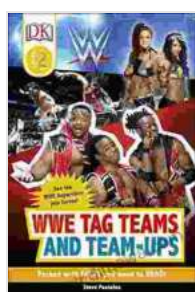

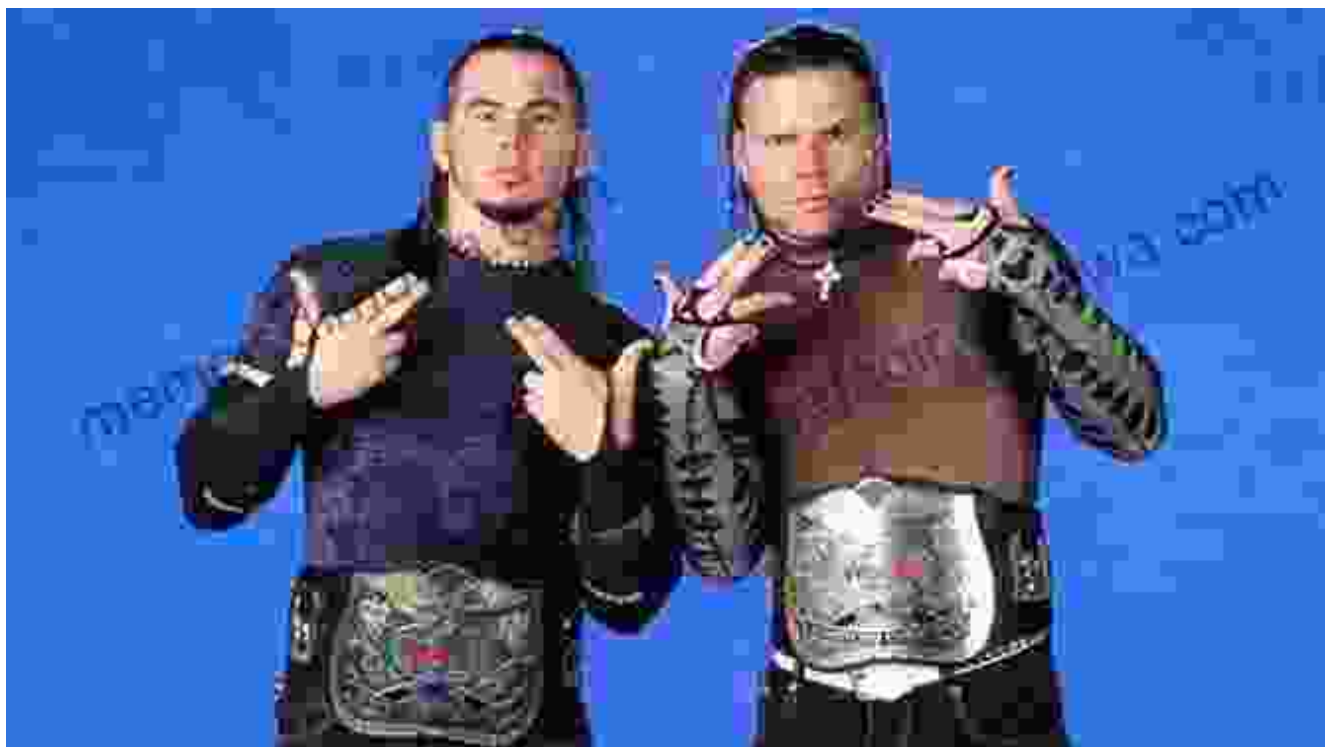

The Ruthless Aggression Era was a period in the early 2000s when the WWE became more physical and aggressive. During this time, tag team wrestling began to make a comeback.

One of the most popular tag teams of the Ruthless Aggression Era was Evolution. The team consisted of Triple H, Ric Flair, Batista, and Randy Orton. Evolution was known for their ruthless tactics and their dominance over the WWE. The team won the WWF Tag Team Championship three times.
