In the face of climate change, it is easy to feel overwhelmed and hopeless. But what if we could find ways to channel our fear and anxiety into creativity and action? What if we could use our imaginations to envision a better future, and then work together to make it a reality?

What Do You Do At The End Of The World Are You Busy Will You Save Us Vol. 1 is a collection of essays, stories, and poems that explore the human experience in the face of climate change. This book is a must-read for anyone who is concerned about the future of our planet and is looking for ways to make a difference.

““This book is a powerful and moving exploration of the human experience in the face of climate change. The essays, stories, and poems in this collection are both heartbreaking and hopeful, and they offer a much-needed reminder that we are not alone in this fight.”

– Bill McKibben, author of The End of Nature”

The contributors to this book come from all walks of life, and they offer a wide range of perspectives on climate change. Some of the essays are personal and reflective, while others are more analytical and political. But all of the contributors share a common goal: to inspire hope and action in the face of one of the greatest challenges of our time.
